The TED video I watched was a talk by a philosopher of science called George Dyson. He spoke about how people made the modern computer. He talked about the big old white computers and he went all the way to the modern APPLE Macbook. He also said that the size of computers has dropped dramatically since they first came out.

I really liked this talk and I found it interesting because I have always liked computers. I still have some of the big white ones as well as a Macbook.

I GIVE THIS FILM A:
